

SL MEETING

Spend time smart. Use your free time to go to places around the city so that we can write reviews about them. Think restaurants, too.

Google places to go. Take note of everywhere you go so that you can write about it. Take pictures of the menu and the places.

Come up with community chest card (situations where you either gain or lose money). Stay specific to certain stories, especially if they fit into the spaces already provided. Also think Chance – more losing money and moving around the board.

We can also do trivia, but we have to find a ton of literary trivia questions.

Also giant jenga, uno, keep looking for games at thrift shops.

That night we have to make sure that we help people keep track of their points so that we can decide who will win the prizes, which will be from our local bookstore partner.

Workshops

About the same amount of time as last year (5 to 6 minutes) to allow for transitions and to talk about SL at the end.

Kameron – Chapter Involvement and Activity; communication within the chapter; telephone game; give a team a quote and relay it to the next person with the last person repeating the quote; connecting it to why it is important to make sure each person in your chapter knows what is going on.

Tristan – Fundraising; start with talking points about the steps of fundraising; build list of successful fundraising ideas to share with others, activity of using spoons to take money and put it in buckets.

Abigail – Community Relations; guiding people with blindfolds

Louis – Sharing and Convention Submissions; use improv games to help people think on their feet and talk in front of others; maybe telling a story

Brittany – KWL charts; ties in to how we finish the workshops talking about SL

Everyone should please put schedule on Facebook page to help us find a better meeting time.

Don't be afraid to talk during meetings. Remember that even though everyone can't use the webcams at the same time, you can turn yours on or turn your audio on while you have the floor.

Now that most of the planning is done, we just have to worry about maintenance and smaller projects.

Keep up with what is going on in other regions, too. Go to the website's regional events page to stay up to date.
